“ Mandy, I wish there was a way to ease the pain. I think of you everyday. Your sister will never know pain nor struggle again. She is at peace and she is with you. She will always be with you because as your sister, she is a part of you. Her blood flows through your veins. Take the good from this. It's never easy to see good in death, in loss. My heart hurts so bad for you, Ashley's children, and especially your parents. My gosh, the pain of losing your child is the absolute worst. If you cry every night, that's okay. This is what they mean by love is pain. Pain is evidence of love and losing those we love is pain. But Ashley is with Madeline now. They are at peace. They give us a dream, a dream of seeing them again, a hope; something to look forward to. But at the same time, it's a reminder that things come to an end. Since we don't know how or when it ends, we have to live and love accordingly. Remind yourself of the positive cry, grieve, and cope the best way you can, do whatever you need to do. But be easy and know that I love you and I am here...and so is Ashley. Because Ashley was loved, and love never ends. It's what binds us together...forever.

“ God saw the road was getting rough
And the hills were hard to climb,
So he closed your weary eyelids
And whispered, "Peace be thine."
Love you my sister Ashley.
Till we meet again and you welcome me with open arms.

“ Ashley was such a sweet child when she lived next door in Brookwood Alabama. She grew into a beautiful young woman. This world & what it offered her were not the best, but it's over now & she is safely home in the arms of God. "Here chains are gone." She's set free. All my love & prayers to her wonderful parents, children & family. My sympathy Anita Adam
